Montagne Communications Hires Madeleine Clark as Public Relations Account Coordinator

Manchester, NH – Madeleine Clark has joined Montagne Communications, New Hampshire’s leading strategic communications firm as public relations account coordinator. Montagne Communications is headed by longtime advertising, public relations, and political consultant Scott Tranchemontagne. Clark, who recently earned a B.A. from the New Hampshire Institute of Politics at Saint Anselm College, will be responsible for supporting the account teams with client services, including community relations, media outreach, special event planning, web and database management, research and writing.

“Montagne Communications is growing rapidly, and Madeleine’s training in political communications and public relations, will prove to be a great asset to our team,” said Tranchemontagne, president of Montagne Communications. “Our company continues to exceed projected growth and the addition of an ambitious and passionate colleague will give us the edge we need to continue expanding.”

Tranchemontagne said Montagne Communications has doubled in size since last May, now employing six full-time employees, with additional hiring expected this quarter. He said that despite the sluggish economy, 2008 revenues are running 50 % higher than 2007.

“I couldn’t be more pleased with our continued growth here in New Hampshire and New England as more and more local, regional and national clients turn to Montagne Communications for their strategic communications needs.”

At Saint Anselm, Clark, was a member of Pi Sigma Alpha, the National Honor Society for Political Science. Clark was also a communications intern for Breathe New Hampshire where she gained valuable hands-on experience in the field of public relations.

According to Tranchemontagne, Montagne Communications offers a unique approach to its strategic consulting and public relations services to its clients. Services offered include media relations, media training, community relations, issues advocacy, government and public affairs, special promotions and event planning, and political consulting. Some of Montagne’s current clients include; FairPoint Communications, The Club at Lime Rock Park in Lakeville, Conn.; Citizens Bank New Hampshire, Waste Management, Cathartes Private Investments (Portwalk Development, Portsmouth), Hawthorne Partners (developments in Bedford, NH and Mystic, Conn.), Chelsea Property Group (Merrimack Premium Outlets), and the American Institute of Architects – New Hampshire.

Montagne Communications recently celebrated its one year anniversary. Tranchemontagne launched the new firm on May 1, 2007, with Kim Moore and E.J. Powers, two veteran communications specialists. Deb Daigle joined the firm last summer as a Public Relations Account Coordinator.
